

Wells Fargo Regional Sustainability Teachers' Academy

Teaching for a reimagined world.

The Wells Fargo Regional Sustainability Teachers' Academy is a professional development workshop designed to help local K-12 teachers from all subjects to integrate sustainability in their curriculum, develop campus projects and encourage community engagement.

March 24 & 25, 2017
8:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.
Seattle, WA

Teacher Benefits: All teachers who participate can earn Arizona State University Continuing Education Units and $150 stipends. Teachers also receive a tool-kit full of sustainability resources for use in their classrooms, schools, and communities.

This two-day workshop is a collaboration between Arizona State University and Wells Fargo. Through this partnership, participants will work with sustainability experts from the Walton Sustainability Solutions Initiatives and sustainability leaders in the region. During this workshop, participants will gain the knowledge, skills and tools to implement sustainability projects in their school and will receive continual support by the Sustainability Teachers' Academy Team as they implement their sustainability initiatives in their schools.

To learn more about sustainability and join the Arizona network of sustainability change agents, apply now: <http://bit.ly/2hOL0SR>

Applications are due March 1, 2017
Questions? Contact us at STA-info@asu.edu